March 15 Meeting: “Lost Fashion”

Archaeologist to Detail What’s Been Gleaned From 1908 Race Riot Home Excavation Site

Archaeology is more than digging up the past. For Chelsea Coates, it also includes piecing together what's found.

Coates, part of the Springfield-based archaeology research firm Fever River Research's team sorting through artifacts from the August 1908 Springfield Race Riot, will detail her work and findings at the Society's Tuesday, March 15 meeting.

The meeting will be held in the Carnegie Room North at the City of Springfield's Lincoln Library, 326 South Seventh Street, starting at 5:30 p.m. The Society's January and February meetings were presented online, reflecting Covid guidelines limiting large gatherings, an issue the Society has been addressing month-by-month.

As it has for other historical sites across the region, Fever River was tapped to do an archeological survey before construction could begin on the Carpenter Street underpass rail project, one that involved doing a partial excavation of five houses destroyed during the riot, all of them constructed in the 1840s and early 1850s.

Archaeological testing began in late 2014 and in 2018 resulted in a decision to shift the railroad right of way to the east to preserve in place those houses. Archaeological site work was completed in 2020. Since then, Fever River has been processing... (Continued on page 6)
It’s Time to Celebrate Women’s History Month. Here’s How!

It’s women’s history month! Here are some resources to learn more about Sangamon County women’s history.

I’ll start with Unsung Heroines: A Salute to Springfield Women by Melinda Kwedar, a book the Society published in 1977. From women’s organizations to firsts for women, SangamonLink.org, our online encyclopedia of Sangamon County history, has multiple articles on local women’s history.

In the right side column, under “Categories” click on “Women.” The Pictorial Souvenir Central Illinois 1912 includes three black woman Springfield business owners, Mary Francis Penn Clark, Mrs. M.A. Tucker, and Miss P.E. Florville.

I hope you enjoy exploring these resources! * * *

Know kids who are interested in history? Check out these local summer camps!

The Springfield Art Association is hosting a five day History Detectives camp for Sixth grade and high school students June 13-17. They will take field trips around town and explore what it’s like being a historian.

In July, the Illinois State Museum is hosting Time Travelers camp for 8-11 year olds where they will explore fashion, music, technology, and culture through art and science activities from the 1890s to the 1990s and the Guardians of the Museum camp for 11-14 year olds will explore what it’s like working at a museum. Learn more on their Facebook page.

The Springfield and Central Illinois African American History Museum is bringing back their History Camp. Dates and more details will be announced soon. These are wonderful opportunities for young people.
April 30 Deadline Set To Seek Special Project Grant Funding

Have an idea for a history project that can make a difference? The Sangamon County Historical Society wants to hear from you, provided you apply for one of its annual Special Project Grants whose winners will be announced in June. The deadline for entering a proposal is April 30.

For more than a decade, the Society's Special Project Grants program has provided the underpinnings for dozens of small but significant historical preservation projects with a powerful impact.

They've ranged from something as simple as a grave marker in a historical Rochester cemetery to furnishing period school equipment for a replica of 1800s one-room school house at the Clayville Historic Site in Pleasant Plains.

The grant program has provided funds to assist the Springfield and Central Illinois African American History Museum with several projects including bringing to Sangamon County a national traveling exhibit tracing the history and impact of the Negro Baseball League, and the Illinois State Historical Society to produce "The Mysterious Bard of Sangamon," a film on poet John Hancock.

Grants have also been used to digitize and thus preserve the architectural plans of historic Sacred Heart Chapel (1895) and the Ursula Hall Music Conservatory (1895) on the grounds of the former Ursuline Academy on North Fifth Street, a Catholic college preparatory high school that operated from 1857 to 2007 and was affiliated with Springfield College in Illinois.

The campus including the two landmark buildings, became a branch of Benedictine University which closed the Springfield operation in 2018.

"Grants have ranged from a few hundred dollars to over $1,000 that because of their size and scope are often overlooked by federal, state, and large private funding organizations that underwrite major, often six-figure projects and have a long application process that often employs professional grant preparers," explains Peter Harbison, chair of the Society's Special Project Grants Committee.

Historic Neighborhood to Get A Close Look When Experts Share Their Findings, April 19

Just who were Susan Lawrence Dana's neighbors along Fourth Street's 800 Block that stretched to the Governor's Mansion in the late 1800s and into the early 1900s?

You'll find out on Tuesday, April 19, when the Society and the Dana Thomas House Foundation provide a joint and up-close look at this stellar historic neighborhood and the people who lived there. Providing the details will be Alliecent Smith, a former Foundation board member and Cinda Klickna, a member of the Society's board and secretary of the Foundation.

Their presentation will draw upon a walking tour brochure published by the Foundation with funds from a Sangamon County Historical Society Grant. The program will be held in the Carnegie Room North at the City of Springfield's Lincoln Library, 326 South Seventh Street, starting at 5:30 p.m. and is free and open to the public.
Society’s Special Project Grants Have Long-Lasting Impact

"Our process is much simpler. Just look at the rules, answer the questions, and submit the application by the deadline date." Information and an application is available on the Society's website, sangamonhistory.org.

Harbison's committee, made up of board volunteers who review and discuss the applications and recommend the recipients and proposed funding to the Society's board, which makes the final decisions. Winners will be invited to attend the Society's annual dinner in June and provide a brief description of their project.

"There are some qualifiers in terms of funding," Harbison noted, rules that come from years of experience that even pre-date the formalized Special Projects Grant process that was established in 2013 to deal with funding requests. Prior to that, individuals and groups that requested project funding were addressed by the board across the calendar year and included everything from an Eagle Scout's desire for financial support to upgrade a historic gravesite off Chatham Road in Leland Grove to a request for funds for major overhaul to the sound system at the Old State Capitol.

Here's a look at the projects the Society has funded since 2013 when the formal grant process was instituted:

Archeologist Finds Clues to Those Displaced by Springfield’s 1908 Race Riot and inventorying the artifacts from the houses.

Last October, Coates and her colleagues -- archaeologist and architectural historian Christopher Stratton and Fever River director Floyd Mansberger -- detailed some of their findings for teachers and historians in a three-part presentation at the annual Conference on Illinois History held in Springfield. The presentation was entitled "Why Bother with the Archeology of Burned Houses from 1908: The Significance of the Archeology of Mob Violence on Jim Crow Era Black Households in the Post-George Floyd Era."

Coates is expected to review and update her portion of the original presentation for the Society's March meeting.

The finds in a charred and burned trunk and dresser from one of the houses has provided Coates and her colleagues with a treasure chest of fragments and buttons from clothing-related items such as corsets and shoes. In addition, there were over 1,200 fabric fragments that have been sorted into individual garments, household linen and other personal accessories including such common personal items as a handkerchief and an umbrella.

Coates joined Fever River Research in August, 2019 after earning a Bachelor of Arts degree with honors in anthropology in 2011 and a Masters degree in historical archeology in 2014, both from the University of Tennessee, Knoxville. Coates also earned a Masters degree in Cultural Resource Management from Colorado-based Adams State University in 2021 and is a Field Archaeologist at the University of South Carolina.
When the Corona virus prevented the Society from having face-to-face meetings back in early 2020 and through most of 2021, we did the next best thing: videoed our programs and put them on-line.

The February 2022 meeting continued that tradition and is available on You Tube. We will continue to make our in-person vs. on-line meeting decisions on a month-to-month basis. If you want to play catch-up on the months we’ve been unable to gather as a group or could not make a meeting, check out the list below, bring them up on your computer or connect your computer’s video output to your television set and watch on a big screen.

HERE’S THE BASIC HOW-TO:

1. Go to the Society’s website. sangamonhistory.org.
2. At the top of the page, go to the menu and tap BOOKS & VIDEOS
3. On the BOOKS & VIDEO page, you will find links--by month and year.
4. If you’re watching it on You Tube Hit the iconic “Skip the Ad” button [that's part of the You Tube experience unless you like commercials.]
5. Enjoy!

February, 15 2022: Black Experiences in Education. The Sangamon County Historical Society marked Black History Month on Tuesday, February 15 with an on-line presentation focused on education that looked at the experiences of two Black female educators—one in the 1870s, the other in the 1950s, who overcame prejudice in their careers and at the history and fate of the Ambidexter Industrial and Normal Institute for Black students established in 1857 in Springfield and almost erased from the history books when the building in which it was housed was twice threatened by razing, once in 2013 and again in 2018. Catch the full presentation on You Tube at https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=u0G96lRHE9k.

January, 2022: History of Springfield’s Movie Theater Industry. It’s a Powerpoint available both as a downloadable PDF and and on You Tube and just like the silent movies it includes, there is no sound, but if your computer has an extra drive, you might want to add a background music, you might want to pop in “The Very Best of Ragtime.” To download it, go to https://sancohis.org/PDFs/THEATER_PDF.pdf or watch it on You Tube at https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=xTAV7maS-sE.

November, 2021: The Mysterious Bard of Sangamon,” can be found on Vimeo (a video sharing website), at https://vimeo.com/626671152/daae07f0cc?m0

May 2021: A Pictorial History of the Construction of the Vachel Lindsay Bridge. Kansas City-based Lance Warren, Research Librarian/Archivist with Burns McDonnell, provides a pictorial and in-depth look at this iconic Springfield landmark and the story and people behind its creation and Lake Springfield.

April 2021: Virginia Eifert: Springfield Native, Prolific Naturalist. Learn about the life and legacy of Virginia Eifert from researcher John Hallwas and the Illinois State Museum’s Tracy Pierceall. Eifert, a naturalist, author, and artist, worked at the Museum where she created, wrote and edited its The Living Museum magazine and publications on Illinois flora and fauna, rivers, people, and history. In 2019, Hallwas, who specializes in forgotten voices from Illinois history,” provided the cover story on Eifert for Illinois History Magazine, whose archives are housed at the Western Illinois University Library.

March 2021: Lake Springfield In Illinois: Public Works and Community Design in the Mid-Twentieth Century. The perfect primer for the Society’s May meeting, historians Curtis Mann and Robert Mazrim provide details from their new book and the story-behind-the-story that motivated them to take a closer look at a public project that helped shape Springfield’s future.

February 2021: Shine A Light Project: Historic Preservation and Interpretation on Springfield’s East Side. Preservationists Sue Massie and Kathryn Harris take a look at efforts to preserve the John Taylor House, the Lincoln Colored Home and Fire House No. 5 and how each site contributed to the lives of African-Americans here.

January 2021: In The Beginning: A Look at Sangamon County 200 Years Ago. Using maps, illustrations and a knowledgeable voice-over, Curtis Mann, head of the City of Springfield Lincoln Library’s Sangamon Valley Collection, provides an illustrated look at both the people and geography that played into the development of Springfield.

November 2020: “I Think That We Will Soon Be In Springfield”: An Illinois Civil War Soldier’s Quotations About Sangamon County from their Personal Letters. Author Mark Flotow brings the Civil War to its grass roots, in a program that illustrates the letters home by including audio readings of some of these moving stories provided by Sangamon County Historical Society members.
